Art Inspired by the Land

A collaborative, contemporary art exhibition pairing more than 15 artists with Boulder County farmers to create new, site-specific visual works inspired by farming and the natural world.

A collaborative, contemporary art exhibit created by the Longmont Museum and the Boulder Museum of Contemporary Art, “agriCULTURE: Art Inspired by the Land,” pairs more than 15 local and national artists with farmers throughout Boulder County to create commissioned visual works. The exhibit draws on the expertise of farmers and the inspiration of nature and invites visitors to examine their own connections to the land and natural world.

This multi-venue exhibition features art at both museums, plus three local farms: Ollin Farms in Longmont, the Boulder JCC Milk & Honey Farm and the Agricultural Heritage Center in Longmont.

Experience multi-media artwork that explores how farming is connected to climate change, water rights, ancestral lands, local history, environmental impacts, cultural heritage and so much more.
